Rising to Governor Beshear's Challenge

~ by Roger Thomas

At the Feb. 2011 GOAP Conference, Gov. Steve Beshear challenged us to take a fresh look at the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund and how it can be used to propel agriculture to new heights.

One aspect of rising to the Governor's challenge came in the form of eight regional forums that we hosted across the Commonwealth. These forums provided an opportunity for public input into the direction of future KADF investments and to share the successes of the Fund in our communities.

To me, this was an opportunity for all of us to reinvigorate the spirit of the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund within the agriculture community. We still need to work with "one accord, one voice" to maintain the funds for agriculture. This was also an opportunity to increase awareness of the Fund to those outside agriculture. We still have a lot of folks out in the state who are not fully aware of the Fund and what has been achieved through its investments.

I am pleased with the participation at the eight Forums. More than 370 folks took time out of their busy lives to share ideas and reiterate the impor-

News Alert: No New Federal Regulations...

Following a 60-day comment period asking farmers, farm organizations and the public to provide input on longstanding safety rules, the U.S. Department of Transportation

CDL to drive a tractor? Implements of husbandry as commercial vehicles was an issue addressed by FMCA's guidance.

(DOT) announced that it has no intention of proposing new regulations governing the transport of agricultural products.

U.S. DOT's Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) also released guidance designed to make sure states clearly understand the common sense exemptions that allow farmers, their employees and their families to accomplish their day-to-day work and transport their products to market.

In comments submitted to FMCSA, GOAP Executive Director Roger Thomas praised the agency for seeking public comment, but cautioned against broad stroke actions.

"While we acknowledge the desire to have consistent definitions and applicable laws across state borders, much care must be taken to avoid tance of the Fund to Kentucky agriculture. More than 48% who participated indicated they are farmers. That is a true testament to the importance of the fund to our farm families. This wasn't just an exercise for agency and organizational folks, but for all facets of agriculture, especially our farmers. The dialogue and networking at the forums was wonderful.

Some of the ideas presented included certification for woodland owners, working on the demand side of local foods initiatives, agritourism, increasing awareness through urban agriculture, farm-to-school, farm succession planning assistance, biomass for renewable energy, genetics testing for meat selection, dairy processing and other regional projects, including grain storage and meat processing and retail centers. Ideas presented at the Forums will be compiled into a report that will be available to the public.

To augment the feedback we received through the forums, the Board has also developed a Stakeholder Survey to gather additional ideas for county, regional and statewide projects, particularly those with both a direct impact to the farmer and a regional focus.

If you were able to participate in one of the forums, then thank you for your support and the input that you have provided. If you were not able to join us, then I hope you will take the opportunity to share your ideas through the Stakeholder Survey.

Together we can meet the Governor's challenge and guide Kentucky agriculture further into the 21st century.

KADB Appointments Made

Gov. Steve Beshear recently announced the appointment of Roy G. Collins, of Manchester, and Dr. Betty Bailey, of Owingsville, to the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board (KADB).

"It's an honor to be chosen by Gov. Beshear to serve on this board," said Collins, representing attorneys with experience in agriculture. "I look forward to working with the other members to propel Kentucky agriculture forward."

A 1996 graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Law, Collins is currently an attorney with Morgan, Madden, Brasher, Collins & Yeast.

Prior to attending law school, Collins received his B.S. in agriculture at the University of Kentucky and was a member of the first class of UK's Natural Resource Conservation Program. Collins farms property in both eastern and western Kentucky and is interested in farming techniques that improve or restore wildlife habitat, while providing financial opportunities to farmers.

Collins's appointment is effective through July 6, 2014.

In 1971, Bailey received her doctorate from Florida State University in family sociology. A home economist for more than 20 years, Bailey returned to the family farm in the 70s, raising cattle, tobacco, hay and horses.

"I know that the Agricultural Development Board is very important, administering one half of Kentucky's tobacco settlement money," said Dr. Bailey. "I am excited to be a part of it, and I look forward to representing farmers on the board."

In addition to farming, Bailey is involved in local and state organizations to represent the interests of agriculture. She is currently a delegate on the Community Farm Alliance board and a member of the Bath County Conservation District board of supervisors.

Bailey's appointment is effective through July 6, 2013.

Members reappointed were Sam Moore, of Morgantown; Wayne Mattingly, of Owensboro and Wayne Hunt, of Herndon.

Compliance Report

On a quarterly basis, the Compliance Department reports to the KADB on both the timeliness of project reporting and the number of projects and programs that have completed their reporting requirements.

Out of 836 projects approved to date, 50% have completed their reporting requirements. The remaining projects are in the monitoring phase, meaning they are required to provide periodic reports about the progress of their project.

Of the 3,307 approved established programs, which include cost-share assistance, deceased farm animal assistance and shared-use, 92% are complete, which means that they have completed their reporting requirements.

Transparency

GOAP's new on-line search tool has helped increase transparency in the funding provided through the County Agricultural Investment Program.

The new search feature allows users to search by county, investment area, producer's last name and/or year. Only information from 2009 forward is available on the search site. The last data update was June 2011.

County Council Corner

County Agricultural Development Councils were established in 2000 to evaluate the needs of the local agricultural economy, devise a plan that would identify programs best suited to support the county's agriculture and assist local applicants in preparing proposals to spend county funds to be submitted to the state Agricultural Development Board (KADB). [KRS 2478.721 (1)]

Priority Sheet Clarification:

If a project is requesting state and county funds, then there is a space for the council to indicate if county funds should be awarded if state funds are denied. For clarification, "state funds" includes not only Agricultural Development Funds, but also Kentucky Agricultural Finance Corporation (KAFC) loan funds.

60-Day Rule:

In Dec. 2009, the KADB established the 60-Day Rule for action on applications requesting county funds. When a council receives a request for county funds, they must convene to act upon and assign a priority within 60-Days that the application is received. This is both a courtesy to the applicant and helps the council achieve a portion of its mission. ☪

Application Deadlines

All applications for projects and cost-share programs, including amendments to existing programs / projects, are due the last Friday of the month.

Projects will be referred to committee at the next meeting and programs are eligible for consideration.

These revisions were approved at the July board meeting, effective July 22, 2011.

The approved changes to the lending guidelines for KAFC's program provide consistency across programs. The revisions will also help improve understanding of the program requirements by lenders and farmers alike.

Revised guidelines are posted at kafc.ky.gov and highlights of the changes are at right. ☞

businesses."

McAninch graduated from Berea College with a dual degree in political science and history. He is a tobacco, beef cattle and forage farmer.

McAninch is active in his community, volunteering his time to coach AAU girls basketball and presiding over the Casey Co. golf boosters. He is also involved with the Community Farm Alliance and the Casey County Democratic Party, serving on its executive committee.

combined loan to value ratio (CLTV):

A CLTV Ratio is the proportion of loans in relation to a property's value.

It is calculated by dividing the total value of the combined principal balances of all mortgages by the value of the property. The CLTV indicates the risk of a borrower going into default if the property purchased is funded by multiple mortgages. High values indicate a greater risk of default (the loan value is a larger percentage of the overall property value).

Economic Impact of World Equestrian Games Announced

In June Governor Beshear announced The Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games held in 2010 at the Kentucky Horse Park had an economic impact of $201.5 million.

“The World Equestrian Games were indeed a success and this report illustrates the positive result that our local and state governments, our sponsors, the many volunteers, the business community and the citizens of the Commonwealth working together can have.” Gov. Beshear said. “It also underscores the important role of the Kentucky Horse Park and the legacy the games will have for future years.”

Kentucky’s longstanding agricultural history and its Kentucky grown and produced products were also featured during the games at the Kentucky Experience Pavilion. Visitors from around the world were able to purchase, taste and experience all the

Ky. Bioenergy Group Tours the Show Me State

This past May, the Governor’s Office of Agricultural Policy and the Energy and Environment Cabinet teamed up to host the 2011 Bioenergy Bus Tour. Over 50 participants from across the state traveled to St. Louis, Missouri to attend the 4th Annual International Biomass Conference & Expo. Participants connected with industry professionals focusing on crop residues, dedicated energy crops, forest and wood process residues, food processing residues, livestock and poultry wastes, and municipal solid wastes, urban wastes and landfill gas. Show Me Energy Cooperative, Monsanto Research Center and Abengoa Bioenergy were also visited on this tour.

“Whether you are motivated by improving our environment, creating economic growth for your community, establishing an affordable, dependable supply of energy for your business, or reducing our dependence on foreign crude from hostile nations, your seat on this bus shows your concern.”

unintended consequences of such action.”

Earlier this year, farm groups came to FMCSA with concerns that some states might not allow exemptions to Commercial Drivers License (CDL) requirements for certain farm operations using “crop-share” leasing.

When it investigated, FMCSA found wide differences among states in how the “for-hire” and related agricultural exceptions were being applied.

As a result, FMCSA asked states to cease all new safety audits on farmers and issued the public notice soliciting input on this complex issue of farm equipment on public roads.

The guidance FMCSA released, which is based on the input provided by Thomas and others, clarifies three critical issues: interstate vs. intrastate commerce, commercial driver’s license and implements of husbandry.

Ribbon Cutting at FFA Leadership Training Camp in Hardinsburg

July 6, 2011

First Lady Jane Beshear joins state FFA officers, as well as state and local leaders, including Roger Thomas (GOAP), David Beck (KFB) and Bruce Harper (KDA), in a ribbon cutting ceremony for the new dining hall at the FFA Leadership Training Camp in Hardinsburg.

The renovation was supported in part by Kentucky Agricultural Development Funds.

The ribbon cutting was held, during the camp’s 75th Anniversary Celebration.

Legislative Oversight

At the May Tobacco Settlement Agreement Fund Legislative Oversight Committee, county extension agents - like Jeff Smith of Fleming County, Doug Shepherd of Hardin County and Ted Johnson of Lee County, all who have seen growth in their county's agricultural infrastructure over the past decade - shared their experiences with the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund.

“Our communities are more stable because of the extra dollars coming to the communities,” University of Kentucky Extension Agent for Lincoln County Dan Grigson told the Tobacco Settlement Agreement Fund Oversight Committee today. “We feel like the Agricultural Development Board has had tremendous benefits to Kentucky agriculture and Kentucky’s general economy.”

The 2000 General Assembly created a state board and county-level framework to distribute millions of dollars from a multi-billion-dollar national tobacco settlement between states and cigarette manufacturers. County extension agents like Grigson are responsible under that law for administering each county's agricultural development council.

The purpose of the state and county level funds distributed under the 2000 law is to help once tobacco-dependent counties diversify their agricultural base. Now, with new agricultural infrastructure for hay storage, goat production, cattle handling and other needs, the agents explained that counties are finding it easier to cope with the loss in tobacco income.

Some lawmakers on the committee suggested that the state and counties look at new funding sources, cautioning that tobacco settlement dollars might not always be there.

“I think we need to be mindful of planning ahead,” said Sen. Joey Pendleton, of Hopkinsville.

Kentucky’s county extension agents seem willing to adapt. As University of Kentucky College of Agriculture Dean Scott Smith told the committee, “the agriculture development programs at the county level have changed the jobs of the county agents,” adding that there have been over 100,000 “teachable moments” because of the 2000 law.

“I know from experience that we could not have done it without that partnership (with county extension agents),” Committee Co-Chair Sen. Paul Hornback, of Shelbyville, said. “It took the leadership of Extension to bring people together to get this done.”

CWG Spotlight...

Kentucky Wineries in the Spotlight

The Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund (KADF) has been supportive of Kentucky's growing wine industry, providing funds for a study, oenologist and viticulturalist to support the growing list of Kentucky wineries.

Recently, the Kentucky Department of Agriculture announced that two Kentucky wineries earned gold medals - with a total of 11 honored - at the Indy International Wine Competition Aug. 3-5 in West Lafayette, Ind. Of the 11 honored, seven have received support through the KADF.

"It is wonderful to see KADF investments flourish with award-winning products," said Roger Thomas, GOAP executive director. "Most of all, congratulations to all Kentucky wineries recognized at this international competition."

Jean Farris Winery & Bistro, of Lexington, and Wight-Meyer Vineyard & Winery, of Shepherdsville, both earned a gold medal with their Petite Sirahs. Wight-Meyer's Diamond was Best of Class in American Late Harvest and Ice Wine, and the winery won a total of nine medals. Jean Farris captured a total of five medals.

Other Kentucky wineries that scored at Indy International were Acres of Land Winery, Richmond (two medals); Black Barn Winery, Lexington (one); Elk Creek Vineyards, Owenton (two); Grimes Mill Winery, Lexington (one); Purple Toad Winery, Paducah (six); Reid's Livery Winery, Alvaton (one); River Valley Winery, Carrollton (two); Talon Winery, Lexington (one); and Wildside Winery & Vineyard, Versailles (one).

Several Kentucky winemakers earned high honors in the amateur categories. A complete list is available at www.indyinternational.org.
